J-Board may hear election charges of irregularities

By Jean Ness
Staff Writer

The contested Student Government election results may be brought to a hearing as early as Friday, Robert Beller, chairman of the Judicial Board, said Thursday.

Minutes after the unofficial results were tabulated Wednesday night, they were challenged by Pete Alexander, presidential candidate, who lost to Garrick-Clinton Matthews by 29 votes. Alexander claimed the polls were not open on time and that several polling procedures were not followed. He said Thursday that he would submit his complaints to the election commissioner.

Alexander said he hoped to have the support of Sam Dunning and Laura Ducey, two other presidential candidates, in his quest for a run-off election between the top three vote-getters.

After the complaints are submitted to Brian Adams, the election official, he must rule on them. Beller said that in certifying the vote tallies, Adams automatically ruled the complaints invalid.

"Then he (Alexander) can appeal to the J-Board," Beller said. He said some law students also complained Wednesday that the Health Service poll was not open on time, and that they could also appeal.

"It has to be settled as quickly as it can be," Beller said, but added that they would have to wait until all parties to the complaint were ready. He had not received any formal complaints yet Thursday.

Cindy Michaelson, a member of the J-Board, said Thursday she agreed the dispute needs a speedy settlement.

"We need to get it settled before finals start," Michaelson said. "Bo Beller (J-Board chairman) is a law student and his finals start next week. That makes it kind of hard."

In order to have a hearing, seven J-Board members must be present. A majority of four votes is needed to approve a run-off election, an option Beller admits is possible.

"Anything is possible," Beller said. "If the board votes for another election, it would be proper."

Investigator says Bell undermined FBI probe

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Attorney General Griffin Bell undermined the Justice Department's investigation of the FBI and blocked possible indictments against eight middle-level FBI officials, the man who headed the probe said Thursday.

William L. Gardner told a Senate appropriations subcommittee that Bell effectively halted the probe by refusing to let prosecutors seek perjury indictments against an unspecified number of FBI officials whom the task force believed were lying.

Without the threat of perjury charges, Gardner said, his task force had no leverage with which to force agents to tell the truth about allegedly illegal FBI activities.

Gardner said Bell also refused to let prosecutors seek indictments of eight mid-level officials on charges of wiretapping, mail theft, break-ins or black bag jobs, perjury and false statements to a government agency.

He said the officials, some of whom still work for the FBI, included three squad leaders, four special agents in charge of divisions and one assistant director.

Gardner, who resigned as head of the investigation task force last December, did not name any of the officials.

Bell had no immediate comment.

Gardner, who is still with the Justice Department, said the task force not only found FBI agents involved in burglaries but also turned up a class in breaking and entering that was given by a "guest lecturer" at the FBI training academy in Quantico, Va.

Another former member of the task force, Stephen Horn, told the subcommittee that Bell pleaded with an FBI official to recant his testimony after the task force told the attorney general it wanted to indict the official for perjury.

"He told him he did not want to prosecute him because he was an FBI agent," Horn said of Bell. "He said it would be an disgrace to the FBI."

The Justice Department recently dropped its prosecution of John J. Kearney, a former FBI supervisor in New York, who was indicted a year ago in connection with bureau wiretappings and break-ins. Kearney was the first agent in the Bureau's history to be charged with a felony.

The statements by Gardner and Horn, and by two other task force members who resigned last year after a dispute with Bell, prompted Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., to question Bell's fitness for office.

"It seems clear that the attorney general, despite the advice of top Justice Department prosecutors, willfully selected not to pursue a complete investigation," Weicker said. "What has transpired here this morning rightfully calls into question the suitability of Griffin Bell to continue as attorney general of the United States."

However, Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said such talk was "sanctimonious" and said what really was at issue was that Bell and his subordinates disagreed on how to proceed with a difficult investigation.

Construction scaffolding collapses; 51 workers die

By Bob Robinson
Associated Press Writer

ST. MARYS, W.Va. (AP)—All 51 workers atop a scaffold inside a power company cooling tower were killed Thursday when the construction framework collapsed and the crew fell 168 feet to the ground in a twisted mass of steel and rubble.

Scott Widmeyer, press aide to Gov. Jay Rockefeller, said hours after the accident, "There are 51 confirmed dead."

Rescuers had to pull many of the victims from under the debris inside the base of the huge circular concrete tower.

A local fire station was pressed into service as a temporary morgue where relatives came to identify the dead, including eight members of one family working at the site.

John Peppier, a laborer standing on the ground in the middle of the tower when the disaster occurred, said the scaffold, wrapped around the inside of the tower, began peeling away and then fell.

Peppier, 38, said, "The first thing I heard was concrete falling. I had just sent a basket... up. I looked over my left shoulder and I could see it falling. I could see people falling through the air and everything falling."

"They just fell like dominoes," a witness said. "I looked up and men were screaming and hollering."

Peppier said he jumped under a truck ramp inside the tower and the four other workers with him ran to the center of the tower. All those on the ground escaped injury, he said.

A twisted mass of tables, lumber, steel and concrete lay over the scene an hour after the collapse.

Just after the accident, 21 bodies were wrapped in khaki blankets and lined up on plastic sheets at the plant site near this Ohio River town in northwestern West Virginia.

The cooling tower was being built for Monongahela Power Co., which draws river water to make steam and generate electricity. When completed, the cooling tower is to be used to cool down the water before it flows back into the river.

Research Cottrell of Bound Brook, N.J. was building the tower for the power company.

Monongahela Power said the structure was about one-third completed. A spokesman said the diameter at the base was 360 feet and the tower was to be 430 feet tall when finished.

George Morrison, an engineer, said: "I was on the ground when it started making noise. It was just a roar."

Another witness said of the doomed men, "They knew what was happening, but there wasn't anything they could do about it."

Lee Steele, of nearby Shultz, said he lost four of his five sons, a brother, two brothers-in-law and a nephew. The surviving son, Robert, 35, who said he was also employed at the construction site but was not on the scaffolding, identified his brothers as Gayle, 32; Ronnie, 30; Ernest, 28, and Miles, 25.

As the dead lay inside the dead, gray concrete building behind the City Hall, state police ushered in the relatives to assist them in identifying the bodies.

Names of most of the victims were not immediately released.

Top white-collar crimebusters zero in on cheaters

CHICAGO (AP)—A team of special agents, headed and trained by top white-collar crimebusters, has begun zeroing in on crooked doctors, pharmacists, and other health care providers who in Illinois alone cheat taxpayers of millions of dollars a year, Gov. James R. Thompson announced Thursday.

The new unit, whose 30 agents began operating in three Illinois cities earlier this week, assumed the prime criminal fraud investigating function from the Department of Public Aid. It will work closely with the attorney general's office and the state's attorneys in all 102 Illinois counties in preparing a "total package to go to court" and seek jail sentences for those convicted of Medicaid fraud.

The Medicaid program, which provides payment for medical care to the poor, has turned into an "enormous tragedy" through abuse and fraud, Thompson said.

Estimates of taxpayer loss nationwide through fraud may run into the hundreds of millions of dollars. In Illinois, "you can't put a finger on it," said Thompson, "$15 million, $20 million or $30 million but it's been millions for years."

Thompson said that, combined with a new computerized system of auditing claims which total more than $1 billion annually, the new unit will seek to stop abuses such as doctors billing for services not provided and for pharmacists billing for drugs never sold or sold on the "black market."

Recent cases of fraud have involved a doctor who billed the state for 24 hours of service provided in one day and another who prescribed 15 to 20 pairs of eyeglasses for the same patient, Thompson said.

He announced formation of the unit at a news conference which featured an array of top investigators and prosecutors who will be involved in the project.

They included Gary Clayton, 29, of Springfield, a former postal inspector, who will head the unit at a $29,000 a year salary; Samuel Skinner, former U.S. attorney who specialized in white collar prosecutions after he succeeded Thompson in the post; Tyrone Fahner, director of the Department of Law Enforcement, who also was an assistant U.S. attorney under Thompson and Skinner; Kenneth Gillis, who will coordinate the effort in the Cook County state's attorney's office; and Attorney General William Scott who said Medicaid fraud constitutes the "largest white collar crime in the nation."

Clayton was the key investigator in several successful white collar criminal prosecutions under Skinner and "is one of the most professional law enforcement people I've ever met," Skinner said.

Skinner, who headed the committee for Thompson which recommended the Medicaid fraud unit, will continue to monitor its work.

It will direct its efforts initially at health care providers and later include recipient fraud, Thompson said.

Its chief aim will be to take cases through trial and seek stiff sentences for those professionals convicted.

"There is nothing like the pain of a person having to say good-bye to his family and go to the cold walls of a jail cell to really deter crime," said Gillis.

Thirty more agents will undergo 18 weeks of training and join the unit in October, Thompson said.

ECRAC election results delayed by complaint

By Lori Amend
Staff Writer

The official results of the East Campus Resident Affairs Council (ECRAC) election will be delayed until a dispute over election procedures is resolved.

Ron Kane, write-in candidate for ECRAC director, and Bryan Bruss, a director candidate on the ballot, have filed formal complaints with the ECRAC election commission contesting Tuesday's election.

The matter will automatically be referred to the East Campus Judicial Board.

Kane's complaint will cite five violations of election laws:

—Students were not required to present their IDs and meal tickets when voting.

—Students were not required to sign their name, address and ID number on a registration sheet.

—Voters, rather than poll workers, placed their ballots in the ballot boxes.

—At times, fewer than two workers (the minimum number) were at the polling places.

—Polls were open only during lunch and dinner hours, rather than from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"I'm going to try to get a new election," Kane said.

Kane, who began his write-in campaign last Thursday, received 175 votes. However, 76 of these were invalidated: 19 because Kane was misspelled and 57 because the number in front of the write-in space was not circled.

Steve Warnell, current ECRAC director, received 169 votes and Bruss received 163.

"I'd like all the laws to be enforced consistently," Kane said. "The election commission is inconsistent in their rulings."

Bruss said he agreed that the rules had been unequally applied. "I'm going to try and fight the decision."

According to the ECRAC constitution, a nine-member judicial board will decide if the violations were "sufficient to effect the outcome" of the election.

Debra Nystrom, judicial board advisor, said the board would rule on the matter within five days from the time it is presented.

Report: World spends $1 million a minute on arms

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—The world is spending almost $1 million a minute on arms, 20 times more than industrialized nations spend to help poorer countries, the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute said Thursday.

Current worldwide military expenditures total $400 billion and "with the current rate it will top $1 trillion by the end of the century," SIPRI Chairman Dr. Frank Barnaby said in releasing the group's 1978 edition of

"World Armaments and Disarmament."

Barnaby, who is British, said "worldwide military spending is twice as high as the yearly gross domestic product of the whole of Africa, about the same amount as the gross domestic product of all Latin America and 20 times more than the total annual development assistance given by industrialized nations to the developing world."

The two great superpowers account for more than half the world's military spending. In 1977, the U.S. defense budget was $80 billion, compared with a CIA estimate of $130 billion—at American prices—for the Soviet Union.

Arms trade with the Third World has increased at an annual rate of 15 percent during the 1970s, Barnaby said, and four countries have supplied 90 percent of the major weapons exported to the Third World.

The United States ranks first, selling 38 percent of the arms imported by the Third World, followed by the Soviet Union at 34 percent, and Britain and France at nine percent each, he said.

The Middle East is by far the biggest recipient, accounting for more than 50 percent of these imports, Barnaby said.

The $4.8 billion package of warplanes for Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia currently being debated in Washington is an example of the big-money arms deals the United States and Soviet Union make in the Mideast.

Researchers study Pap test for males

By University News Service

Two physiologists at SIU are conducting limited clinical tests of a male version of the Pap test used for the past 30 years to detect the early stages of cervical cancer in women.

The researchers think the new procedure, when confirmed by large-scale tests, could eliminate many deaths from late diagnosis of prostate cancer, probably the second-deadliest cancer among men. Lung cancer is first.

"We hope to be able to pick up signs of cancer in the prostate and maybe in the bladder when it's just getting started," says Margaret Couture, a Ph.D. student in the Department of Physiology. She is working with Matthew Freund, chairman of the Physiology Department, who developed the approach.

The test is quick and easy, she says, and would allow screening for early stages of prostate and bladder cancer as often as once or twice a year, for men in the age groups most susceptible to the disease.

The test involves taking a sample of seminal fluid and putting through the same sort of microscopic analysis given female vaginal smears for the Pap test.

Margaret Couture, Matthew Freund

"Once a year, possibly even once every six months, a man could send in a sample," Couture says. "It could possibly be a lifesaver."

She thinks the test could be more accurate than the now-standard urinalysis used to screen for prostate and bladder cancer. That and surgical biopsies are the only ways to check for early signs of those forms of cancer. But Couture says it's usually too late to do much when cancerous cells show up in the urine.

Like the examination for cervical cancer developed by D. George Papanicolaou in the late 1940s, the test involves a microscopic inspection of cells that have sloughed off the interior walls of the reproductive tract.

After sperm and stray white blood cells have been filtered out, remaining cells (from the prostate, bladder, testes or wherever) are chemically stained. Abnormal cells are easily identified.

So far, tests have been limited because most of the samples have come from student volunteers and other men whose prostates have proven to be normal. All results so far have been negative for cancer.

Two Southern Illinois hospitals with urology clinics have agreed to provide semen samples from a wider range of volunteer subjects. The Couture-Freund team will then launch full-scale test. Dr. Adiraji Palagiri, a urologist in SIU-C's School of Medicine, is assisting in the expanded test effort.

Expert to give drugs seminar

A leading expert on hallucinatory drugs will give a seminar on hallucinogens Monday evening.

Richard E. Schultes, Paul C. Mangelsdorf professor in natural sciences at Harvard University, will present the seminar at 8 p.m. in Room 141, Lawson Hall.

Schultes, who is also director and curator of economic botany for the Botanical Museum at Harvard University, is widely respected in the scientific community for his studies of narcotic, medicinal and poisonous plants. He edits "Economic Botany," the journal of the Economic Botany Society.

He has spent 14 years among South American Indians in the Amazon River region studying their use of medicinal and hallucinogenic plants. His presentation will include slides and a film of Amazon region Indians.

Schultes' seminar is open to the public at no charge.

Study: Audio-visual waste costs $500 million a year

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter was told that the government spends at least $500 million a year on audio-visual activities marked by "waste and questionable procedures."

The White House released a year-long study Thursday that Carter had ordered in an effort to search for federal waste and inefficiency.

The study, which itself cost $82,000, concludes that the government's production of films, videotapes and slides, television spots, radio recordings and film strips costs enough to run the State Department for six months.

Stated another way, the government's film-making activities cost the taxpayers more money than would be spent under the proposed fiscal 1979 budget for the entire foreign military aid program.

The study turned up evidence of "a pattern of waste and questionable procedures." As a result, the Office of Management and Budget has set forth government-wide rules aimed at ending waste, duplication of effort and inefficiency in audiovisual programs.

One of the new rules even bars federal officials from succumbing to the temptation to become "ham actors" in their own films.

Here are some of the "horror stories" cited in the summary findings of the study, directed by former network television producer Robert Lissit:

—"An agency spent $125,000 on a motion picture, but has lost track of the film. There is no record of where the film went, or whether anyone saw it."

—"It is impossible to develop an accurate count of the number of government television studios in the Washington area."

Rehabilitation Institute receives program grant

By Bill Cullen
Staff Writer

SIU's Rehabilitation Institute has received a grant from the Rehabilitation Services Administration (RSA) to help develop a master's program in job development and placement training.

The objectives of the program, according to Dr. Andrew McDonald of the Rehabilitation Institute, are to help upgrade the quality of job development and placement of the severely disabled, to augment the number of specialists available to public and private agencies, and to provide a coordinating agency for research in job development and placement on campus.

"We must continue to ensure that clients are adequately trained vocationally and also personally, prepared to meet the needs of competitive employment," he said. "Job development and ultimately placement is recognized today as a major service and a critical rehabilitation service."

McDonald said students will be accepted into the program in the fall of 1978 and traineeships will be available to qualified, full-time students. Traineeships are provided by the federal government, and represent a tax-free grant that covers tuition and fees plus a living allowance, he said.

No such program exists in this immediate geographic area, McDonald said, although there are similar long-term training programs at Drake University and Michigan State.

"Since the national priority on placement is so high and the number of trained professionals so low, it is anticipated that even with the addition of this program, the need will only be partially met," he said.

Rebels take control of Afghanistan

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Rebel forces in Afghanistan claimed Thursday to have overthrown the authoritarian government of President Mohammed Daoud after armor and air attacks on the presidential headquarters and other government buildings in the capital of Kabul.

The rebel claim, broadcast on Kabul Radio, could not be immediately confirmed—many lines of communication were cut to the landlocked, mountainous nation.

But in London, diplomatic dispatches and reports of monitored radio broadcasts from the Afghan capital said the armed forces had seized control and "wiped out" Daoud's family.

Many bodies were seen in Kabul's streets after several hours of heavy fighting, said diplomatic sources here in contact with eyewitnesses in Kabul.

Gen. Abdul Qadir, who described himself as chief of defense forces, said in the rebel broadcast monitored here that a military revolutionary council had taken control of the Texas-size nation of 2½ million people, wedged between Pakistan, Iran and the Soviet Union.

"For the first time power has come into the hands of the people," he said. "The last remnant of imperialism and tyranny of the Mohammedzai has been put to an end."

The Mohammedzai is the clan of both Daoud and former King Muhammad Zahir Shah, who was overthrown by Daoud in 1973.

Western diplomats here said the broadcast might indicate the coup leaders are politically to the left of Daoud. They said Qadir previously had been known only as vice commander of the air force.

Qadir declared the new regime would follow a foreign policy of "strict" non-alignment. Afghanistan traditionally has maintained close ties with the Soviet Union, its major trading partner, but also has received aid from the United States.

Benzene banned from products

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Consumer Product Safety Commission continued a government assault on benzene, voting unanimously Thursday to ban the suspected cancer-causing agent found in many household products.

The commission took the action in response to a petition filed nearly a year ago by the Health Research Group, an organization affiliated with consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

But the organization criticized the commission for delaying the ban, saying it had allowed businesses to continue selling products containing benzene instead of ordering them off store shelves.

Earlier this year, the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency had laid siege to benzene, both citing it as a threat to public health.

Thursday's action by the consumer agency will not become effective until sometime in the fall because of legal procedures to put the ban into effect.

Ehrlichman leaves federal prison

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Convicted Watergate conspirator John Ehrlichman smiled for photographers but refused to be interviewed Thursday when he was paroled from a federal prison in the southeastern Arizona mountains.

Ehrlichman, 53, left the minimum security prison near Safford and was driven 164 miles to the Phoenix airport, where he boarded a commercial flight to San Francisco.

A domestic adviser to former President Richard Nixon, Ehrlichman served 18 months of an eight-year sentence for conspiring to cover up the Watergate burglary and authorizing another burglary.

The second burglary, in the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, allegedly was related to release of the Pentagon papers.

Carter prepares gas rationing plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Carter administration has prepared a standby gasoline rationing plan which would allocate enough fuel to run every car that a person or a business owns, congressional sources disclosed Thursday.

The rationing scheme would be based on auto registration rather than on how many persons in each family hold a valid drivers license, as urged by former President Gerald R. Ford.

Energy Department officials recently briefed Senate staff members on the plan, which is to be formally announced next week. A copy of the plan was obtained by Associated Press Radio.

The rationing plan—to be activated only in the event of a national energy emergency—is required by the Energy Policy and Conservation Act which Congress passed in December 1975.

Shortly before he left office in January 1977, Ford proposed a rationing plan which would have given two gasoline coupon allotments to a family if the husband and wife each had drivers licenses.

The Carter plan would permit a family with three, four or five cars to purchase enough gasoline to keep all of them running.

Leaving the Swift Trail Prison, Ehrlichman said he had agreed previously to grant his first interview as a parolee to Margaret Osmer of ABC News.

Ehrlichman has declined to be interviewed since he entered the prison on Oct. 28, 1976. He had been assigned to operate the prison power plant on the overnight shift.

His plans were not disclosed.

Live and in color from San Quentin: 'Execution Bowl'

In Owensboro, Ky., Rainey Bethea was hung by his neck until he died.

He was poor, black, about 25, and uneducated. He was soundly convicted, following a burglary, of murdering and raping an elderly white woman.

Days before Bethea's execution, Owensboro lived in nervous anticipation—not unlike a child expecting a spanking when his father gets home. Hundreds of people gathered on hanging day on the large county lot near the jail. They brought their wide-eyed children, binoculars, cameras, bologna sandwiches and cold root beer.

Rainey Bethea's death gained him historic significance; he was the last person to be executed for crimes by public hanging. And since the passing of both Rainey and public hangings, capital punishment has failed to serve our criminal code as an effective deterrent to crime.

Capital punishment since 1936 has not been an effective deterrent to crime because executions behind closed doors now prevent significant audience participation, and the empathy that should result from the "show and tell" method has been lost.

Today, 490 inmates live on death row in our prisons and are eligible to die for their crimes under a 1976 Supreme Court ruling. Except for limelights like Gary Gilmore, who provoked and pressured for his execution last year, many of the condemned may now die after little more than a few simple headlines, a good meal, and a flickering of lights throughout their old cell block. Their deaths will be virtually meaningless as statements toward crime deterrent.

Simply put, it is a failure to communicate. We have an activity and clear statement on one hand—criminal execution and its moral consequences—and on the other hand an audience—the American public—who thrives on this type of activity and could benefit greatly from the statement. What we have to do is link the two together.

Our attention should be focused on Florida where John Spenkelink, one of 98 persons there on death row, may soon be sentenced to die for the murder of another criminal. We should prepare now for live-radio and television coverage of Mr. Spenkelink's execution.

The programming should be prime time with all the promotion afforded "Roots" and "Holocaust" and should feature interviews with Spenkelink, his family, his judge and survivors of the man he is now accused of murdering.

Nothing should be left to one's imagination. Spenkelink must be filmed live on his last evening and morning. He should be filmed leaving his cell, winding through the dank corridors to the big oak chair with its leather straps and electrical terminals. At his final moment his voice should be recorded—whether crying, swearing or whimpering—and all the cameras should be zeroed in on his eyes, using a split screen for the executioner's face, as the final switch is thrown.

Only then can we claim that capital punishment may be an effective deterrent to crime. If potential felons are enticed to view the possible end result of criminal efforts, they may seek other solutions to their problems.

There is one real danger to this proposal: media over-exposure. With the number of condemned persons quickly reaching 600, it may be difficult to be inventive enough to keep the program in prime time ratings.

However, if the networks have been able to pull off "Laverne and Shirley" for this long, they must have the talent to keep executions live.

Since 33 states now have capital punishment statutes, there could be a nation-wide run-off for the best regional filming of an execution, like North-South against East-West, and the most heinous offender can be scheduled for frying at Super Bowl halftime, which promises to be much more exciting than the punt-pass-kick finals.

Sponsorship of any approach will never be a serious problem. The national life insurance companies would be at each other's throats for a contract and the local funeral homes would seek their share.

Since the Supreme Court ruled the death penalty, if not mandatory, was a constitutionally acceptable form of punishment, the courts have been reluctant to invoke capital punishment. In many instances, such as Florida, the public is pushing its legislators to persuade the courts to use the optional death penalty.

It seems only reasonable that if the public believes capital punishment to be an effective deterrent to crime, that public executions should be restored in order to emphasize the consequences of a capital crime.

Situation wanted:Gigolo

By Bob Greene

For some reason I have been thinking about alternative job opportunities in recent days. I have pored over list after list of occupation descriptions, and I think I have come up with the ideal solution.

I have decided to become a gigolo. Since you don't hear much about gigolos here in the 1970s, I contacted the world's leading expert on gigolos, Lynn Ramsey of New York City. Miss Ramsey has spent the last year and a half traveling the world to study the history and current status of gigolos.

"Are you sure you want to be a gigolo?" Miss Ramsey said. "For most people, the word 'gigolo' conjures up an image of a slimy creature slinking around diamond-dripping matrons at society parties, a lounge lizard, a snake who is generally to be avoided."

"I feel it is my calling," I said. "Very well," said Miss Ramsey. "I'll do what I can to get you started."

Miss Ramsey—who has turned her scholarship into a soon-to-be-published book, "Gigolos: The World's Best Kept Men"—said that the first thing I ought to do is be familiar with what a gigolo is.

"He's a man who lives off women," Miss Ramsey said. "Someone who is kept by rich women. Not necessarily by one woman, but definitely paid for and kept by women."

"Sounds good," I said. And indeed it did. I had heard tales of famous gigolos of the past, and I longed to be like them. There was Count Boni de Castellane, who used to make a woman pin a $1,000 bill to the bed curtain every time he made love to her. There was Porfirio Rubirosa, who married dime-store heiress Barbara Hutton and then, only two months later, flew off to join Zsa Zsa Gabor in a converted B-52 bomber that Barbara had bought him as a $250,000 birthday present. There was Rod La Rocque, who starred in a 1926 Cecil B. De Mille production called "Gigolo," and of whom the advertisements said, "He had become a gigolo! From a fine young fighting son of Uncle Sam he had sunk to a man who sold his company to fashionable women for money."

"So how do I get started?" I said to Miss Ramsey. "Well, there are certain rules," she said. "With a gigolo, the initial impression is very important. You really must look the part. Clothing is the key. You must dress impeccably."

"I must?" I said. "Absolutely," she said. "No successful gigolo would dare embarrass the woman he is with by wearing the wrong clothes. You don't really have to be that handsome, but you must look like some very self-assured, successful person. You can't look like someone who just gave away his last quarter. Money attracts money, and if you are going to attract wealthy women, you must at least give the appearance of having money."

"Second, and equally important, you must be able to amuse people. You must be fun to be with. You must be a party person, very social, a good conversationalist. Because what you are becoming is a court jester for rich women. Either you have it or you don't. There are people who are fun people; it is something they are born with. Are you a fun person?"

"A riot," I said.

"Good," Miss Ramsey said. "Now on to the third rule. You must be very shrewd. You have to know what you want and go after it with whatever it takes. What you want is rich women to keep you, and you can't be stopped. You can't be stupid about handling women. You must really know what it is to make a woman happy. It's a talent."

"Fourth, you must be idle. Free time is essential. You can't have a 9-to-5 job and still be ready to be seen at the right places when the opportunity strikes. You must always be available to charm women."

"Fifth, you must possess a knowledge of the way society is set up. You must know who's who in society, who's really important and who isn't worth it. The real gigolo is clever enough to go after only a woman who can do something for him."

"Sixth, you must know where the action is."

"And seventh, you must be able to romance a woman. If you are a physically beautiful man it's a big help, but even more important than that is your ability to make a woman feel more a woman. Not necessarily to make her feel loved—but to make her feel adored and flattered. A good gigolo has got to do it like he means it."

"How's the pay?" I said.

"For a gigolo, the pay is indirect," Miss Ramsey said. "Your woman will most likely set you up in your own apartment, where she will keep you. She will give you charge cards at all major stores. She will buy all your clothing. She will buy you a car. She will give you spending money. But there is no salary as such. That is just not done."

"Should I be ashamed of wanting to be a gigolo?" I said.

"Gigolos who stay with it don't have a sense of shame," Miss Ramsey said. "You lose your shame. You are merely a gigolo, and you live with that."

"Gigolos have enormous egos. They have a need to be needed. The really good ones are absolute egomaniacs who feel that the world spins around them."

"Check," I said. "Where do I start?"

"Palm Beach would be a good place for you," Miss Ramsey said, "because there are so many wealthy widows there. Then there is St. Tropez, Cannes, Monte Carlo, Paris, Acapulco . . . but it is my belief that these days, you can become a gigolo in any major city in the United States."

"Women are in the right frame of mind now for gigolos to make a comeback. Gigolos were at their strongest during the periods immediately before and after the Second World War, and now the time is right again. Women want men as playthings, and there are enough rich women out there who need their egos boosted. This has something to do with the women's movement. The need for gigolos is in the air again. Are there any other questions?"

"Just one," I said. "Do I have to learn the tango?"

Spend some time and help clean up 'strip'

With finals week just around the corner, the majority of students is very busy attempting to tie all its loose ends together. To meet this task, it is important that we do not forget anything, including the "strip."

Throughout the year, the strip has served the students and the community in various ways. Events like Halloween, Homecoming and Kappa Kariival could not have been as much fun as they were without the strip.

With this in mind, I would like to extend an open invitation to all citizens, students and-or beer drinkers to participate in the final series of the Carbondale

Spring Clean Up. The event will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 29, behind the Amtrak station. Trash bags and refreshments will be supplied. The trash will be piled up and photographed for all to see. So, come and spend a little time to help make our backyard clean again.

For more information, call the Student Environmental Center, 453-3461. Also, any group of more than 10 interested in participating, please contact Jim Ambrosio, 549-7065.

Most don't buy dream of Fourth Reich

There's been a great hue and cry recently about the American Nazi Party. Between its attempts to march in Skokie and the "Holocaust" program, tempers are on the rise and few have tried to put things in perspective.

For one thing, America has had to deal with such influences before. To prove that there is nothing new under the sun, I refer the history student to the Know-Nothings of the last century, who shared the American Nazis' mistrust of Jews, Catholics, blacks and foreigners. The influence of the Ku Klux Klan has also waxed and waned with the years; we might be said to be putting up with the third Klan, counting as the first Klan the group that lived during Reconstruction and those Klansmen active in the 1940s as the second Klan.

The point is that America has had to put up with extremists pushing the myth of white supremacy for decades. The American Nazis have the shock value of their German namesakes going for them, but otherwise are hardly capable of getting most people to swallow their racist bulge. It's also hardly likely that such a minority group could come anywhere near to exerting the kind of power they enjoyed in Germany, largely because the Germany of 1932 was caught between active fascist and communist revolutions, and chose Hitler as the less of evils. Needless to say, that isn't happening here and isn't likely any time soon. All the Nazis have to play on here is basic racism, and granted we have enough of that to go around. Still, most people know better than to believe in the pathetic dreams of a Fourth Reich.

Students have sense of 'dried raisins'

Allow me to extend my sincerest, most heartfelt, nay, my warmest congratulations to you, my fellow students at this fine institute of higher learning, where the questions of human existence and the role we play in the continuation of the universe are certainly pondered daily. Once again, fellow Sahukis, you have shown the stuff you are made of, and I can avow it is not of the same as dreams are made. Once again, like the wild dogs you've made yourselves, you have shown that college students have as much sense as a dried raisin.

You were there, weren't you? Saturday night at 7 o'clock in Grinnell Hall? They were showing "The Exorcist" for free. Remember? I could have sworn you were the one who started the pushing. Well, all I know is that someone pushed someone else who pushed me and I couldn't help but to push into someone else because my right leg was over there and my left leg was in front of me, I think, and before you know it I'm almost on my face, but the guy in front of me held me up because someone else was holding him up and someone else was... Well, you get the idea.

If you don't remember that, how about the guy who put the chair on the table and tried sitting four feet above everyone else? He certainly fell quickly, didn't he?

You don't remember that either, huh? Well, I know you remember trying to get out when the movie was over. It took nearly half an hour! That was pretty funny. There must have been about 800 people waiting to see the 10 o'clock show. Remember we were at the end of the line and there were only about 15 of us trying to get out? Yeah, well, those 800 people decided they were going to get in before we got out. Pretty funny, huh?

I won't even bore you with the petty stuff that went on during the movie like talking, shouting, laughing, chair scraping, or other nonsense like the people who turned the lights on five minutes before the movie was over because they wanted to leave. I wouldn't think of embarrassing you like that.

So let me just say congratulations once again on a job well done, fellow student. Incidentally, I take back that remark about you being wild dogs. After all, I wouldn't want to insult someone as intelligent and civilized as a pack of wild dogs.

Mr. Rabbit' begs you to visit his home and save it from bulldozers

Hello. I'm the Rabbit. I live in a field near your school. So do lots of my friends. It's a nice, quiet place to live. But we're afraid. Wise Mr. Owl was flying by the "big house" across the field from here. They said that our home was waste land. They said they would send bulldozers and big machines here to flatten us and our homes. Mrs. Rabbit is pregnant again and in no shape to run for her life. And Mr. Owl says "that it's not getting crowded for us animals" everywhere else. Poor Mr. and Mrs. Turtle would never make it.

All my friends have asked me to send you this message. We are so small. You are so big and strong. We need you help, all of you. The old men say they are going to play a game on our homes after the bulldozers leave.

My friends and I would like you to come and visit us. Come quietly and look closely. You'll see this is no waste land. It's our home. Please save us. Please save me.

Editor's note: This letter was received by the Student Environmental Center. Rob Dunlavey, president of SEC, submitted the letter to the Daily Egyptian.

No church or school should accept 'gays' as members or teachers

The letter from Laura Brown in the Daily Egyptian April 20 trying to make being gay a normal way of life is all wrong. Unless she was reared in an atheistic surrounding and doesn't know about God and His word, then she can persuade herself to think being gay is all right and acceptable, but our nation was founded on "In God we trust."

We don't relish paying taxes all the days of our lives to support those who want to be gay. Some even have the audacity to want to join a church. The church has always taught such behavior was what caused the fall of Sodom and Gomorrah in Biblical times.

Therefore, no church or school should ever accept gays as teachers or members, either male or female, any more than they would hire one from the House of Sodom. Before God that choice is an abominable sin! Let them earn their living from the commercial world and not from people whose income is lower than what they receive.

Carbondale got along quite well, thank you, without the University

In response to Bernadette Save's letter of April 19, she should realize that the University and the city of Carbondale are two separate entities. Carbondale doesn't run the University and the University doesn't run Carbondale (thank God!). She seems to confuse the issues.

The food and bare necessities are no higher in Carbondale than anywhere else and as far as I know, local banks don't "rip off" our money. Anyway, as of the last bank statement, mine was still there.

Carbondale would still be on the map if the University was not here. If you recall, Carbondale prospered as a railroad town, not as a University locale.

If the school wasn't here, we wouldn't have to listen to the complaints of students about all of last winter's potholes in local roads. The road taxes only account for 25,000 residents when 50,000 people (25,000 students) use the roads. The University itself doesn't contribute to road taxes.

Granted that students pour thousands of dollars back into the community as revenue. I don't see either city or students as being taken advantage of.

Furthermore, students like Ms. Save only contribute to community-University disharmony.

Library hours extended

Morris Library will stretch out its operating hours during the next two weekends to accommodate students homing up for final examinations. Darrell Jenkins, assistant librarian, said the library will stay open until midnight Friday and Saturday and May 5 and 6. Finals for students begin May 8, and end with the close of the semester May 13.

Morris Library's abridged operating schedule during the month-long vacation between spring and summer semester calls for the library to be closed on Sundays, open on Saturdays from 2 to 6 p.m. only, and open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. One exception is Memorial Day on May 29 when hours will be 2 to 6 p.m., Jenkins added.

Hospital rates rise despite increased voluntary program

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Hospital Association reported Thursday that hospital costs continue to rise, but at a slower rate than last year.

The association attributed the trend to its new voluntary cost containment program.

Officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, who have criticized the voluntary program as merely a public relations campaign, did not respond immediately to a request for comment.

Alex McMahon, president of the AHA, said the association's figures effectively refute the the Carter Administration's contention that voluntary controls are still a willful not work.

The AHA said the latest statistics show that the rate of increase in spending by community hospitals across the nation dropped from 18.8 per cent in January, 1977, to 13.5 per cent in January, 1978, a reduction of 3.3 percentage points.

The total expenditures for 5,785 community hospitals came to some $4.7 billion for January, 1978, compared to $4.1 billion the previous January.

The average cost to the patient in January, 1978, was $163.36, per patient day, up 10.5 percent from January 1977, the AHA said. The cost to the patient for an average stay of 7.4 days was $1,349.76, up 10.5 percent. The average length of stay was unchanged.

"These figures were achieved despite added labor costs which increased 13.7 per cent due to Social Security, minimum wage and general payroll increases," McMahon said.

Survey finds bridges unsafe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The vast majority of the bridges under county control across the country are below modern safety standards or are inadequate, the National Association of Counties said Thursday.

Bernard F. Hillenbrand, executive director of the association, said the situation was uncovered in a survey of bridges that are not on a federal highway system and are under county jurisdiction.

In a statement releasing the results of the study, Hillenbrand said the survey identified 233,000 bridges under county jurisdiction and found 224,000 of them have serious problems.

The survey found that 88,900 bridges were functionally obsolete. This means they "are too narrow or have too low a clearance or approach roadway alignment or load capacity which can no longer safely service the road to which they are an integral part," the association said.

It also identified 77,900 bridges with structural deficiencies which have caused them to be restricted to light traffic or closed, although this list somewhat duplicates the functionally obsolete bridges.

The National Association of Counties said its conclusions were derived from a bridge survey that consisted of a questionnaire sent to all counties in the 38 states where counties have responsibility for road or bridge maintenance.

The Federal Highway Administration has identified 33,500 bridges on road systems receiving federal aid which are either functionally obsolete or structurally deficient.

Public big loser in insurance fraud

CHICAGO (AP)—Doctors and lawyers are the "masterminds" of fraudulent schemes that result in higher premiums for casualty protection, says the Midwest director of the Insurance Crime Prevention Institute.

"We find that they are almost always the masterminds, the investigators behind schemes to stage phony accidents and inflate or falsify outright medical bills and other claims," Charles G. Ward said Wednesday.

"The resulting fraud this year alone is expected to cost at least $1 billion and, unfortunately, the public is the big loser through higher costs unless law enforcement officials get tough on this problem," he said.

The insurance fraud expert cited a joint investigation by the institute and the Justice Department after which four Kansas City, Mo., doctors and lawyers were indicted Wednesday on charges of taking part in a $2.5 million insurance fraud involving staged car accidents.

The fraud reportedly bilked 60 insurance companies.

Indictments said doctors and lawyers hired "runners" and "bird dogs" to solicit accident victims or to pose as victims themselves.

Tag, you're It...

"It Came From Outer Space" will be shown at 7, 9 and 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Student Center Auditorium.

'It' to be shown here in 3-D

The three-dimensional version of an early '50s science fiction classic, "It Came From Outer Space" will be shown at 7, 9 and 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Student Center Auditorium.

Based on a treatment by Ray Bradbury and directed by Jack Arnold, it was filmed using the Anaglyphic System, one of many 3-D processes that Hollywood developed in the early '50s to combat the "TV menace." It was shot using two cameras mounted side-by-side to give an effect like human vision when it is projected.

Cinematheque is providing special 3-D glasses to assure the audience gets the full effect. The plot of the film concerns an amateur astronomer in a small Arizona town who spots a UFO landing in a nearby cave. Call Doc Hynek!

At 1 a.m. Saturday, "The Tinger" will be shown in the Student Center Auditorium. Vincent Price stars in

Funk Band special to air Saturday

Last weekend's performance by the award-winning SIU Funk Band at the Wichita Jazz Festival will be aired at 7 p.m. Saturday on WTAU-FM. An interview with the band will accompany the half-hour tape.

The band, which won first place at the festival, will play their last performance of the year at Hangar 9 Monday night. Proceeds from the 50-cent admission will go into a jazz scholarship fund.

Chamber music, voice recitals set for weekend

Two free music programs are being offered at the Old Baptist Foundation this weekend.

Gene Krismantis, a baritone from Rock Island, will present his senior voice recital at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Old Baptist Foundation. Krismantis has sung with Southern Singers, University Choir, and the Male Glee Club and will appear as a soloist with the University Choir on their European tour. He will be accompanied by Debby Cooper on piano.

At 3 p.m. Sunday the School of Music will present a chamber music program by the SIU Faculty Piano Trio in the Old Baptist Foundation.

Members of the ensemble are pianist Kent Werner who once studied at the American Conservatory in France; violinist Helen Poulsen, a former member of the Houston Symphony Orchestra and Christine Greeson, cellist and winner of the Utah Symphony Young Artists Concert. Greeson is a former member of the Madison Symphony, Beloit Symphony and the St. Louis Philharmonic.

Both the concert and the recital are free and open to the public.

'Macbeth' spasmodically brilliant

By Marcia Herrera
Staff Writer

Like the flash of lightning which began the play, "Macbeth" was spasmodically brilliant, but more often in the dark on Wednesday night. The Shakespearean tragedy, the last of the University Theater productions this season, shined with the performances of Jan O'Connor as Lady Macbeth, Randy Taylor as Macduff, Jeanne Gilbert as Lady Macbeth, and Joseph Talarowski as the Porter. What lay between these exceptional performances was a mixture of realistic and unrealistic elements which gave this dark tragedy a comic twist.

Though an initial reaction to shock may be to laugh, it was not shock that produced giggles from the audience, but the blundering and unbelievable manner in which the "bloody deeds" were committed. Lady Macduff jumps around in her delicate state, trying to avoid the blow of a sword, the clanging of an accidentally-dropped sword, and the calmness of Banquo as a dagger is plunged into his stomach. The audience is left too aware that this is just a play.

Even with this awareness, however, the audience did gasp at the sight of Macbeth's head upon Macduff's waist. Dean Kurland has created the head with a startling likeness to the face of Duane Lancaster, who played Macbeth.

The musical score, by Phil Orlando added another dimension of realism to the story. A good idea, but, unfortunately, the sound effects were not always quite on time, such as when one character said "I hear horses" and the clippety-clipping sound followed his line.

Supernatural effects, especially the apparitions of the kings, were cleverly executed. But even these effects became another example of a clashing of the unrealistic with the realistic. We are asked to believe in these supernatural effects yet the central character, Macbeth, does not appear very affected by them.

The challenge in the role of Macbeth lies in the changes in personality which Macbeth undergoes in the course of the play. Duane Lancaster, as Macbeth, captured the fragility of Macbeth's character and also the half-crazed delight Macbeth has in being the King, but he didn't bring the character full-circle. He showed no change in Macbeth at the end of the play, when Macbeth's life comes full-circle.

Crisp, clear and in complete control of her character, Jan O'Connor played a cunning Lady Macbeth. As Lady Macbeth, she pushed and pulled her way to queenhood, proving to be the strong Macduff and his wife are never seen together, their bond is apparent. Lady Macduff, in fear of what was to come, reacts to her husband's absence in bluntness and hurt. The part of the Macduffs' son was acted with intelligence and competence by Alban Dennis.

Looking like a true professional in a cast of amateurs, Joseph W. Talarowski played the porter in a hunched-over position resembling actor Marty Feldman in "Young Frankenstein." This was one scene in the Shakespearean tragedy that was supposed to be funny and it succeeded.

The other scenes—ones that weren't supposed to be funny—were not entirely the cast's fault. The act of murder seems not so shocking today when seen on television nightly or when seen even more bloodily in the movies.

"Macbeth" is a difficult production and is not often done on college campuses. Despite its faults, it is worth seeing, especially if you have never seen a performance of a Shakespearean play. "Macbeth's" text is not difficult to understand; they are a cast of good enactors who are not communicators.

The play will continue at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday in the University Theater.

Tickets are $3 for the public and $2 for students and are available at the University Theater box office in the Communications building.

A Review

one in the beginning and then the most guilt-ridden in the end. O'Connor built into her role a believability that was sorely lacking in most of the other characters.

Besides O'Connor, exceptional performances were given by Jeanne Gilbert and Joseph Talarowski.

Taylor, as the revengeful Macduff, was refreshing in that his portrayal of Macduff was so very human. No one dared laugh as he threw himself on the floor of the stage in grief. "I must also feel it as a man," Macduff said. Taylor made the audience feel his misery with him.

Lady Macduff was diligently played by Jeanne Gilbert. Though

SIU grad writes for children

By Terri Mischler
Student Writer

"Cowslip," "Spies on the Devil's Belt," "The Against Taffy Sinclair Club," are three of the five children's books written by Betty Haynes, a 1982 SIU journalism graduate.

Haynes, a native of Boston, was recently named Journalism Alumna Graduate of the Year for 1978 by SIU for the success she has achieved since graduation.

"Journalistic writing does help fiction writers. Authors have a tendency to over do. Children cannot wade through pages of description," said Haynes, a member of the Authors Guild.

Haynes, a teacher at the Institute of Children's Literature at Redding Ridge, Conn., said children are interested in mystery and ghost stories, not science fiction or history.

Haynes, of Wilton, Conn., said she does a great deal of research before writing a mystery book about a historical region or character. "Cowslip" was about a man who kept slaves as prisoners on the third floor of his home. Haynes said she read 120 books before writing it.

A member of the Society of Children's Book Writers and author of an Arrow Book Club selection of the month, Haynes said, she also reads books of other authors to keep up with what's being published. Haynes said environmental books have been "written to death."

She has a spare style using little description. "Don't try to develop a style. Style is a natural thing, your own will eventually emerge."

Haynes explained when suggesting guidelines for students to follow.

In addition to writing novels, Haynes has written travel pieces for the New York Times and has had articles published in "Boys Life" and "Jack and Jill" magazines. In all, she has written 34 short stories for children's magazines.

Children six to eight years old are too hard to write for because they are the youngest and have very short attention spans, said Haynes, a member of the National League of American Pen Women. She said she feels most comfortable writing for eight to ten year olds.

Second City caps Springfest Friday

By Kate Wall
Student Writer

It all started when three men bought a Chinese laundry because they wanted someplace to sit and drink coffee. During one of their passive meetings, one of them felt the urge to entertain. This gave birth to a group of comics called Second City which has been creating a world of satire and comedy through improvisational techniques for the past 18 years.

They are the comic counterpart of the streetgang, stand-up street-fighters who substitute satire and sketches for switchblades and run-bles," wrote David O'Keefe in a review of Second City. The improvisational comedy group from Chicago, described as "brash and innovative" by O'Keefe will perform at 8 p.m. Friday in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Such topics as love, death, money, politics and psychology provide their material. The form is similar to burlesque—a series of short, unrelated scenes. They use only a few hand props and improvised costumes. An elaborate set or prop is never used.

Producer and director for all of it's 18 years, Bernie Sahlin said, "One reason for our survival is that our form allows us to stay in the present. Any experiment away from the form has been a disaster."

"We don't do satire. I call it identification," Sahlin said in a Chicago Tribune interview. He explained that Second City tries to communicate to the audience their understanding of life's problems and the fact that they aren't alone in the world.

"We're a social institution," Sahlin said, "like the church. Our best moments come when we hit certain things about our everyday lives that bring the joy of recognition. Recognizing in itself is joyful. I think that's why kids smile when they learn to walk. We need the laugh and the recognition."

Second City develops most of its material in a performing situation. The actors improvise on ideas suggested by the audience, the director or its members. The group's philosophy is that the audience is at least as smart as the performers, and probably smarter than they are.

The normal course for a Second City actor is from workshop to touring company to resident company, where most remain for 2 or 3 years before moving on to more lucrative jobs. The group that will perform here is the touring company. It was established in 1967 to bring improvisational theater to cities outside the Chicago area.

Successful alumni of Second City include Elaine May, Valerie Harper, Joan Rivers, Stiller and Meara, Alan Arkin, Gilda Radner, Burns and Schreiber and most of the "Not Ready for Prime Time Players."

The company is highly regarded by stage and television producers and directors as a training ground for new talent. They have performed in London and annually in Toronto, they turn out about 2½ revues in Chicago yearly plus another 3½ in Toronto.

Both Chicago and Toronto have a touring company and workshops. The troupe has also produced television specials in New York, Chicago and Toronto. In September, 1977 their television series debuted. It was a satirical look at a day in the life of a typical television station and was appropriately named "SCTV" (Second City Television).

Performing as a warm-up for Second City will be Joel Drazner, a Radio-TV senior who won Tuesday night's "Comedy Store" competition.

Drazner describes his act as "boidly going where no traditional stand-up comic has gone before by performing his entire 10-minute set on one knee."

A member of Brooklyn Bob's Traveling Medicine Show, he has "studied intensively" under Second City director Del Close, who has been called the "godfather of improvisational comedy."

Tickets for Second City are on sale at the Student Center ticket office for $7.75 or at the door for $1.

THE OPTIMUM MOMENT.

Mountaineering<sup>1</sup> is a skill of timing as well as technique. The wrong moment, like the wrong method, marks the gap between amateur and aficionado. So the key to successful mountaineering is to choose the occasions wisely and well. When, then, is it appropriate to slowly quaff the smooth, refreshing mountains of Busch Beer?

Celebrations, of course, are both expected and excellent opportunities to test your mountaineering mettle. Indeed, on major holidays it is virtually mandatory to do so. Imagine ushering in the fiscal new year or commemorating Calvin C. Coolidge's birthday or throwing caution to the wind during Take-A-Sorghum-To-Lunch-Week without the benefit of Busch. A disturbing prospect at best.

On the other hand, not every event need be as significant as those outlined above.

Small victories like exams passed, papers completed or classes attended are equally acceptable. Remember the mountaineer's motto: matriculation is celebration.

Interpersonal relationships are also meaningful times. There are few things finer than taking your companion in hand and heading for the mountains, transcending the hum and hum-drum in favor of a romantic R & R. Naturally, couples who share the pleasures of mountaineering run the risk of being labeled social climbers. But such cheap shots are to be ignored. They are the work of cynics, nay-sayers and chronic malcontents.

Similarly, the ambience of an athletic afternoon (e.g. The Big Game) is another ideal moment. Downing the mountains elevates the morale of the fan and, hence, the team. Therefore, if you care at all about the outcome, it is your duty to mountaineer.

When should one not enjoy the invigoration of the mountains? Here, you'll be happy to learn, the list is much briefer.

Mountaineering is considered declassé with dessert, improper during judicial proceedings and just plain foolish while crop dusting around power lines. Otherwise, as the hot-heads of the sixties used to say, "Seize the time!"

<sup>1</sup>Mountaineering is the science and art of drinking Busch. The term originates due to the snowy, icy peaks sported by the label outside and perpetuates due to the cold, naturally refreshing taste inside. (cf. lessons 1, 2 and 3.)

Don't just reach for a beer.

Head for the mountains.

Bilingual handicap workshops set

By Anne Lawler
Student Writer

Through workshops funded by a state grant, special educators may soon be able to serve and identify the bilingual handicapped more effectively, according to James Crowner, director of the workshops.

Crowner, a professor of special education at SIU, was awarded $14,000 to set up 13 workshops throughout Illinois.

One goal of the workshops is to teach those who work with bilingual handicapped children how to determine the culture of the child as well as its disability, Crowner said.

Consultants and speakers are brought in from Spanish, Puerto Rican, Cuban, Italian and Vietnamese cultures, Crowner added. "Of the 20,000 bilingual handicapped children in Illinois, 80 to 90 percent speak Spanish, therefore it is important that most of the speakers are familiar with the Spanish culture," Crowner said.

Another workshop goal is to teach special educators to administer culture-free tests to exceptionally handicapped children.

In planning the workshops, Crowner says he often found that students for whom English is a second language were being placed inappropriately.

Sometimes they were placed in bilingual programs for want of appropriate special education, sometimes in special education programs for want of a bilingual program, Crowner said.

Crowner said this happened because instructors were not trained to be culturally sensitive, and misinterpreted the exceptional children's needs.

eight-hour workshops said there has been a favorable response to the workshops.

Attendance usually ranges from 15 to 30 people, according to Helmer. Participants in the workshops include parents of bilingual handicapped children, grad students and special educators, she added.

Completed workshops have been held in Aurora, DeKalb, Elgin, Champaign, Carbondale, Joliet and Moline.

There are two remaining workshops to be held in Chicago.

SIU graduate to speak at dinner-dance presented by Friends of Morris Library

The Friends of Morris Library will hold their annual dinner-dance on Thursday, May 18, Jane Lockrem, executive secretary of the organization, has said.

Lockrem said the evening will begin with a social hour at the University House from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., followed by a dinner on the fourth floor balcony of the library. Afterwards, there will be a dance, with the vocal group "Mercy" providing music.

James Morton Smith, director of the Henry Francis DuPont Winterthur Museum, in Wilmington, Del., will be the featured speaker. Morton, a 1941 SIU graduate, will speak on a colonial history.

The yearly Delta award will also be presented, Lockrem said.

The dinner will cost $15 per plate, and is restricted to the organization's members and to members of the Illinois State Historical Society and the Jackson County Historical Society.

Committee passes doubling of hunting, fishing license fees

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A more-than-doubling of the state's hunting and fishing license fees was approved Thursday by an Illinois House committee with the approval of the state Department of Conservation.

Gov. James R. Thompson won't sponsor or promote the hikes, but at the same time is not opposing them, spokesmen said.

The House Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Committee, on 11 to 9 votes, approved two bills raising the resident fee for hunting from $3 to $7 and the license fee for sport fishing and speering from $2 to $5.

Sportsmen could buy a combination fishing and hunting license for $11 under both measures.

The actions, in effect, resurrected similar hikes which cleared the House last year but fell one vote short of approval in the Senate. The fee-hike bills, which are sponsored by Rep. Ronald E. Griesheimer, R-Waukegan.

The hunting license fee bill was amended by the House panel to raise daily permit fees for duck from $3 to $10; for Canada geese from $5 to $10 and for pheasants from $5 to $10.

Conservation department director David T. Kenney, a Thompson appointee, appeared to support both bills, saying he was representing the wishes of Illinois sportsmen.

Zale Glauberman, Thompson's chief legislative lobbyist, said the governor will support the fishing fee hike if the additional funds go to funding of a new state fish hatchery.

Groups debate handgun control

By Mickey Hasket
Student Writer

An organizational meeting for an anti-handgun group turned into a heated debate between members of the National Rifle Association (NRA) and members of the Student Coalition to Control Handguns (SCCH).

The NRA supporters, armed with Remington hats, NRA insignias and pistol club patches confronted the SCCH leaders Wednesday night who came wearing "has handgun" buttons and shirts.

Calling the 32,000 gun related deaths yearly in the United States "obscene," SCCH co-chairman Forrest Claypool cited FBI statistics showing the danger of handgun ownership.

"For every one handgun used by a homeowner in self defense, 125 cause harm to family members through accidents," he said.

In addition, Claypool cited statistics showing that 70 percent of all murders are committed by people with a handgun who have never committed a crime before. These are crimes of passion committed with an available handgun in a stressful situation, he said.

One NRA member, stated that if he had it in his mind to kill someone and a handgun was not available, he would simply use a knife or club.

Claypool disagreed. "You must realize that a handgun is the most deadly of weapons. For instance, statistics quoted by the United States Attorney General's office show that you are four times more likely to survive a knife attack than an assault with a handgun," Claypool said.

Questioning the constitutionality of the SCCH's proposed federal handgun ban, a handgun control opponent said, "The Second Amendment guarantees me the right to bear arms. are you going to take that right away from me?"

John Modaff, SCCH co-chairman, said that the judicial branch of the government interprets the Constitution. He then noted that the United States Supreme Court has ruled four times that the Second Amendment does not guarantee a private citizen the right to own a gun.

"It only guarantees the right of the states to maintain armed militias, without federal interference," Modaff said.

Several NRA members said they were familiar with the Supreme Court decisions and felt there was room for a different interpretation.

Both sides remained adamant in their convictions.

"We don't hope to create a gunless utopia," Claypool said. "We're talking about people's lives."

Jack Blessing, a Carbondale pistol club member, said, "Don't take my handgun away. We had a pistol shoot this weekend and had a gay old time. Handguns are a glorified plaything by me."

Illinoisans oppose plans to close military bases

WASHINGTON (AP)—Illinoisans on Capitol Hill have said the Carter administration must wage a long, hard campaign if it wants to move ahead with plans for closings and cutbacks at four military installations in the state.

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., said he would battle net cuts at any Illinois military installation except Ft. Sheridan, in Chicago's northern suburbs, which he said should be turned into a park.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said he would "not condone change for the sake of change" and would press the Pentagon to show proof the planned closings and cutbacks were good for the taxpayers.

Rep. Edward Madigan, R-Ill., said he would fight "at every step of its development" a plan to close Charles Air Force Base with its $100 million payroll, in Champaign County. Reps. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill. and Robert McClory, R-Ill., both said they would battle planned reductions at Ft. Sheridan.

McClory said, though, he was not very concerned about a proposal by the Navy to move its recruit training center from Great Lakes, near Waukegan, to San Diego, Calif., or Orlando, Fla. He said such a transfer would be offset by a plan to switch the exhibits center at the navy yard in Washington and the recruiting command at Arlington, Va., to Great Lakes.

Meanwhile, Reps. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., and James Leach, R-Iowa, wrote to Assistant Secretary of the Army Alan J. Gibbs to demand public hearings on plans to move the Army Management Engineering Training Activity at the Rock Island Arsenal to Ft. Lee, Va. They said the move would cost the Quad Cities $2 million a year.

The congressman emphasized that the proposals were not final and could be revised or abandoned through a long process of public hearings. Percy and Railsback recalled the battle two years ago after which the Pentagon threw down its sword and dropped plans to close the Savanah Army Depot.

Madigan said he was upset by the plan to close Charles because high Air Force officials promised him earlier this year that the base would remain open.

"After a sleepless night, I continue to feel betrayed by the action of the Defense Department," Madigan said. "I cannot feel that this decision was a military decision. In the past four months I've met with officials of the Air Force and been told orally and in writing there were no plans to significantly change the status of the mission at Chanute."

"I intend to challenge this study at every stage of its development," Madigan said.

Stevenson said that with the exception of Ft. Sheridan "I will oppose plans to force net reductions of military activity in Illinois bases until it can be proved they are justified by reason of defense and efficiency."

As for Ft. Sheridan, he said, "There is no justification for maintaining 300 acres of manicured landscape with two miles of unused beach near the heart of the nation's most park-starved metropolitan area."

Besides a park, he said, the base could be used to provide low-cost housing for the elderly.

Percy said that he would press the Pentagon to conduct extensive public hearings in communities affected by these proposed changes.

Little Leaguers reject health foods on ball field

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—Muffy Harding and her fellow Little Leaguers say their parents committed an error in taking away the candy bars and soft drinks from their refreshment stand and replacing them with kumquats, sesame crunch and apple-banberry juice.

"Our teeth aren't the point," grumbled 13-year-old Miss Harding, who plays first base for the Cubs and has an .818 batting average for the season which opened last weekend.

"The parents are trying to impose on us, but they don't really understand how we feel. We're just having fun and they're trying to shove health food at us."

"Bleah," said 10-year-old Brendan Coe, a pitcher for the Cubs, as he bit into a juicy kumquat from the concession stand at Boyle Park, where Mill Valley Little League games are played. "It would taste better with sugar on it." Mill Valley is a suburban community north of San Francisco.

Several mothers got together before the season started and decided to replace the sugary fare of past years with fruit juice, Tiger Milk bars and other snacks less harmful to young teeth.

Many youngsters have gazed blank-faced at the posted menu, then wandered 50 yards away to the snack bar at the Mill Valley Teens Club, where an understanding Alma Leal offers the kinds of treats they're used to.

"If the kids don't get it here, they'll go downtown," she said. At her door stood three hungry Little Leaguers. "There's nothing to eat over there," said one. "Whadda you got?"

About two dozen more customers came and went before the snack bar attracted the ire of Little League president Bob Radell, who confronted Mrs. Leal.

"We're trying to see if we can get them to drink the fruit juice," Radell said, although he admitted to drinking an occasional soft drink at home. "We've got $500 worth of juices in the concession stand and if we don't get rid of them, I don't know what we'll do."

But the Little Leaguers didn't seem convinced. As 9-year-old Brian Storm, sipping from a cup through seven straws, put it "Coke tastes better."

Choir, orchestra final performances given in grand style

By Michael Gonschus
Staff Writer

It was a trip. Sitting in a plush red seat in Shryock Auditorium and listening to the Symphony Orchestra—the upward sweep of strings carrying an exotic theme to its climax—you almost felt as if you were in the country from which the music was born.

Making its final appearance of the season, the orchestra took its audience on a tour Thursday night, playing music from other lands and other times.

The evening's musical journey began slowly, begrudgingly, with the "Overture and Allegro" from "La Sultane Suite" by Couperin, a work freely transcribed by the composer's French compatriote Djinus Milhaud for orchestra.

A Review

After a round of applause, the orchestra moved on to the second piece of the evening, "Poza," a composition from the "Golden Age" by Dmitri Shostakovich, accompanied by a sense of movement through time and space.

Listening to soloist Helen Poolos, a faculty member, play the violin was as uplifting as watching the orchestra perform under the batons of Robert Bergt and George Humey, associate conductors.

Bergt conducted the orchestra throughout the evening with the exception of Haydn's Symphony No. 8, which was conducted by Humey and featured Poolos and Bergt. For this he moved from the conductor's stand into the orchestra playing the violin. Other soloists for the Haydn composition included faculty members Christine Gresson, cello; Charles Fligel, bassoon and Jervis Underwood, flute.

It was Edward Grieg and the music of Norway following intermission. The orchestra's performance of the most exciting moments of the evening. Opening the piece was a harsh, repetitious and monophonic sound that emanated from the horn section. An exotic, almost oriental theme rose from the string section.

As the orchestra moved into the allegretto grazioso, the wonderful, melodic sound of a crying baby poured forth from Shryock's balcony. After the mother allowed the baby to accompany the orchestra for several minutes—long enough to disturb most of the audience—she decided to take the future Metropolitan Opera star out into the lobby.

Other than this minor disturbance, the orchestra performed the final piece of the evening, Richard Wagner's "Festival Prelude" from "Die Meistersinger." Accompanying the orchestra was the symphony choir.

Three students to represent U.S. in world orienteering championship

By Paul Engstrom
Student Writer

Despite a lack of traveling money, Pat Dunlavey, men's intercollegiate orienteering champion, and two teammates will compete in the World University Orienteering Championships to be held July 10-23 in Jyväskylä, Finland.

Dunlavey won the U.S. Championship, held April 1 and 2, at the Beaumont Scout Reserve, 25 miles southeast of St. Louis, Mo. He ran the 5.3-kilometer course in 51:00 minutes and finished first out of 121 starters. Jim Hertz, a first-year student, took second-place with a time of 52:11 and Sue Swenson, a senior in plant and soil science, finished fifth in the women's most running the course in 127:34.

"I figure it will cost about $1,600 per person to make the trip to Finland," said the 22-year-old geography major. "I think the university should help pay part of the expense. I feel we deserve it, but we don't want to beg," Dunlavey added.

On April 17, Dunlavey submitted requests for financial assistance to the Student Senate, the Graduate Student Council, the Intramural Recreation Sports Committee and to Student Affairs. He is awaiting a decision.

At the World University Championships, 25 countries will be represented and each will be allowed to field seven men and seven women. Three of the 14 Americans competing will be from SIU—something which Dunlavey feels this university should be proud of.

Dunlavey became interested in orienteering after taking a GSE course in it his freshman year. He has been training hard ever since, running an average of 30 miles a week.

What is orienteering? Orienteering is the sport of navigating across unfamiliar terrain through the use of a topographic map, a compass, and the individual's ability to use them to his best efforts. Competitors only compete against others of their own age, sex, and experience.

The sport originated in Sweden and can be compared to a car rally but done on foot with the individual being the driver, navigator and providing the power output, as well.

Enthusiasts like to call orienteering "the thinking sport" because one has to be fleet of mind as well as foot. One must choose the best routes to each checkpoint which is not always a straight line. It is not unusual for a 200-foot hill to be in the way. A mistake can cost valuable time and first place in the meet.

At the start of a race, each runner is given his map one minute before leaving the starting line at intervals ranging from one to three minutes. Runners do not get lost, but in Dunlavey's words, "temporarily misplaced," because the forest can "swallow up people amazingly fast."

"I try to pace myself as any good runner does and to avoid stopping but sometimes I have to walk a short way," Dunlavey said. "By the end of a race I'm physically and mentally exhausted."

Dunlavey has been selected to participate in the selection race that will determine the United States Orienteering Federation's Team for the World Orienteering Championship. The selection race will take place May 5-8 near Minneapolis, Minn. The team will be selected on the basis of performance on all three days of competition with the top five male and female orienteers going on to Norway for the World Championship in September, 1978. This level of competition said Dunlavey, is the "elite" or top class in orienteering and is run on a more difficult and longer course than the collegiate level.

Women netters enter Valley tourney

By Bud Vandernack
Sports Editor

There is no athletics competition for women in the Missouri Valley Conference, but the women's tennis team will still be going after a Missouri Valley title this weekend. Mickey Holmes, commissioner of the Valley, will not be there to present the trophies, however. The prize the netters will be trying for is the championship of the Missouri Valley Women's Collegiate Tournament in Columbia, Mo. The competition began Thursday and will continue through Saturday.

Eighteen teams are entered in the tournament, including such tennis powers as Drake, Kansas and Nebraska.

Three wins in four matches last weekend have made Coach Judy Auld optimistic about the Salukis' chances to capture the team title.

"I'm really happy with the way everyone is playing right now," Auld said. "Winning those three matches was good for the girls' confidence. We'll have our work cut out for us, but I think we can win if everyone plays well."

The tournament will be a single elimination affair, but Auld said there will be a consolation bracket if time and weather permit. Each team will be permitted to enter six singles players and three doubles teams.

Playing singles for the Salukis will be Sue Briggs, Marsha Bladel, Mauri Kohler, Sue Cispkay, Debbie Martin and Jeannie Jones. Briggs and Bladel will form one doubles team, with Cispkay and Carol Foss forming the second and Kohler and Jones the third.

Briggs, a two-time Illinois singles champion, broke out of a personal slump last weekend with three wins in four matches. Auld said the senior from Rock Island, who will compete in the AIAW Midwest Regional May 19-21 in Muncie, Ind., should do well in the Missouri Valley tourney.

"Sue is among the top four seeds at the tournament and that should put her in a good position to score some points," Auld said. "Sue and Marsha are also one of the top-seeded doubles teams and that will help us in the draw."

Bladel will be trying to extend her singles winning streak as the sophomore won all four of her singles matches last weekend when the netters played Southwest Missouri, Arkansas, Tulsa and Oklahoma State.

Following the tournament the netters will be in a state of limbo for two weeks. The tournament is the last scheduled competition of the spring season, but there is a possibility that Briggs will have some company when she travels to the regional next month.

Based on their second-place finish in the state tournament last fall, the netters are in the running for an at-large berth in the team competition at the regional. Auld said Bladel also has a chance to receive an at-large berth in the singles competition. Auld will not know the team's status until May 15.

ISU, MVC tourney next for netters

By Steve Cooran
Staff Writer

Tennis coach Dick LeFevre hasn't noticed any significant differences in his team's play of late, but the Salukis have managed to win five out of their last six matches and are hoping to continue on that surge at 1 p.m. Sunday on the University tennis courts against MVC rival Indiana State.

"I haven't really noticed any big changes," said LeFevre, who is finishing his 21st year at the helm of the Salukis. "Maybe they're making eight good returns out of 10 now instead of just making seven out of 10 before."

Indiana State should be pretty tough. They beat Big Ten power Indiana 6-3 last week. We can't ever seem to get up for ISU. We sort of take them for granted."

With the team's rapid improvement of late, the Salukis team record has climbed to 10-17 and moved LeFevre's career win-loss record to 270-136. But right now he is something else on his mind. The MVC championship tournament is scheduled for May 4-6.

La Boss schedules dinner meeting

La Boss, the lady boosters of Saluki sports, have scheduled a dinner meeting at 6 p.m. Tuesday at the LBJ Steakhouse. All interested women are welcome and they should call the LBJ Steakhouse for reservations.

Those women interested in joining La Boss should contact Vicki Flannigan, public relations officer, at 457-4764.

The Salukis are defending MVC champs but will be rated as an underdog at best when it comes time to face powerhouses like Wichita State and West Texas State, both of whom own 9-1 victories over SIU this season.

year and maybe they'll do it again," LeFevre said about his Salukis.

"We'll need some help from other people entered in the tourney," Last season, SIU defeated West Texas State in the championship match, 5-4.

The biggest roadblock threatening the Salukis at the present time is the fact that they have but one player seeded in the tourney. No. 1 singles player Jeff Lubber has defeated the No. 1 man on the Shockers and the Buffaloes' top player and has been seeded as No. 1 player in the tourney.

All of which means that the other five starters on the team will have to battle much stiffer competition during the tourney than they would've if they were seeded. The other Salukis competing against ISU and in the MVC tourney are Neville Kennerley, Boaz Nikritin, Sam Dean, Mark High and Jose Lizardo.

Seaver still in search of win

CINCINNATI (AP)—In spring training, the question was whether Tom Seaver would win 30 games. Now the question is when Seaver will win.

So far, Seaver has gone 0-for-April, with a 0-2 record and an earned run average of 5.00 after five starts. In his last effort, the three-time Cy Young Award winner lasted four innings at the Los Angeles Dodgers tagged him for eight hits and five runs, all earned.

"It's like Pete Rose going 0-for-16. You know he's going to come out of it," said Larry Shepard, pitching coach of the Reds.

"He just doesn't have it together yet. He isn't throwing as consistently hard as he should. I think he's trying to overthrow...force it." Seaver wasn't around to explain his difficulties after Wednesday's game. According to a club employee, the five-time 20-game winner left the ballpark "long before the game ended—and he left in a hurry."

Reds Manager Sparky Anderson admitted that a team rule says "every player on the team has to stay until I walk through the door."

But he sidestepped the question when asked if Seaver was in the clubhouse after the game.

Bristling, he said, "They don't have to stay for any...writers. They answer to me, not to writers."

Doug Rau, 3-0, who spaced 10 hits to give the Dodgers' staff its sixth complete game in seven outings, said Seaver wasn't himself.

"He had pop on some of his pitches, but he looked out of synch on others. I don't know if it's a physical thing or not," said Rau. "If it is," said Shepard, "he's keeping it to himself."

Shepard feels the remedy might be more runs.

"If we could just give him a lead," he said. "We haven't been giving him very many runs."

Seaver, a five-time 20-game winner, figured to be near-invincible with the Reds. But so far, Cincinnati's awesome attack has been strangely silent when Seaver pitches.

In 27 innings, he has received only five runs. Last week at San Francisco he allowed only two hits in seven innings, but left the game trailing 1-0.

Seaver, who won 14 of 17 decisions after being traded to Cincinnati in mid-June last season, contends his troubles are in his delivery. He has struggled all spring, winning only one of five starts during the exhibition season.

SIU to face Aggies in tourney

The Saluki baseball team will play New Mexico State in the first round of the Missouri Valley baseball tournament May 18 at Omaha. Pairings for the double-elimination affair were announced by the Valley Tuesday.

Se teams will compete in the tournament (Drake and West Texas State do not field baseball teams) and Bradley, by virtue of a blind draw, was awarded a first-round bye. The Braves will meet the winner of the Salukis-Aggies game.

Other first-round matchups have Indiana State meeting Creighton and Tulsa playing Wichita State, which is in its first year of Missouri Valley baseball competition.

Six games are scheduled for the first day of action at the tournament, which will conclude with the finals May 21. Games will be played at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. at two locations in Omaha, with the semifinals and final to be played at Rosenblatt Stadium, the home of the College World Series.

The Salukis won last year's Valley tournament on their way to third-place finish at the College World Series.

Salukis' power keys twinbill sweep Hilltoppers

By Bud Vandersnick
Sports Editor

The Saluki baseball team traveled to the Bluegrass State Thursday and took along its heavy artillery. It needed all available ammunition to win a doubleheader and to extend its winning streak to eight.

Western Kentucky collected 13 runs and 29 hits in the twinbill, but the Hilltoppers came away winless. The Salukis scored two runs in the top of the seventh in the opener to escape with a 7-6 win, and they slugged their way to a 10-7 triumph in the nightcap. The Salukis have now won 16 of their last 17 games and they have a season record of 25-9.

Home-run trots were commonplace in the opener as Paul Ondo, Jim Adduci and Chuck Curry each hit two-run shots for the Salukis and Terry Tedder hit a solo blast for Western Kentucky.

The Salukis took a 5-0 lead into the bottom of the fourth, but the Hilltoppers scored six runs in the next three innings to take a 6-5 edge going into the seventh.

Ondo walked to lead off the seventh, but he was forced at second base by Craig Robinson. Curry then followed with his seventh home run of the season to make a winner out of reliever Rick Keeton. Keeton, 5-3, relieved starter Bob Knezevich in the fifth inning.

Both teams had 11 hits in the contest, with the Salukis committing two errors and the Hilltoppers one.

The Salukis raced to a 2-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap on Dave Stieb's 10th home run, but Western Kentucky took the lead with five runs on seven hits in the second off SIU starter Dave Stautz.

The Salukis scored two more runs in the third inning and took the lead for good with three in the 14th and three in the sixth. The Hilltoppers scored single runs in the fifth and seventh.

Stieb made the trek from center field to the pitcher's mound in the third inning and the junior from San Jose, Calif., earned his second win against no losses. The Salukis were able to win despite being outbait by the Hilltoppers 16-13.

Western Kentucky's record dropped to 23-16 with the two setbacks.

Bruce Hanson was three-for-four with two RBIs in the nightcap and Frank Schmidt, a sophomore from Blackwood, N.J., who has been getting playing time at third base recently, had three hits and three RBIs in the doubleheader.

Stieb's 10th home run leaves him just one shy of the SIU record of 11, set by Barry O'Sullivan in 1969.

Coach Itchy Jones' team will try to continue its magic this weekend when it faces Austin Peay in a three-game series at Abe Martin Field. The Salukis will meet Austin Peay in a 3 p.m. single game Friday, and the two teams will play a doubleheader Saturday at 1 p.m. The Salukis will conclude their weekly endurance test with a single game Sunday at Murray State.

Softball team looks for hitting, prepares for state tournament

By J.W. Campbell
Staff Writer

Softball Coach Kay Bechtelsbauer is looking for some clout.

Not the kind that Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago carried, not the kind that Master Charge says it has—but bonafide fence-topping batting clout.

The Saluki softball team has not been scoring runs, and its frustration reached a peak Wednesday as the Fighting Panthers of Eastern Illinois downed SIU 3-0. Bechtelsbauer never likes to lose, but at this juncture in the year her concern about the slumping Saluki batters is even more acute than usual.

"We only have three more games until state tournament time," Bechtelsbauer said. "Hopefully, we'll do well this weekend and go into the tournament on a winning note."

The Panthers' mound ace, Donna Kraemer was credited with the win, as she struck out six Salukis and walked one while going the distance. SIU could muster but five hits against the EIU hurler.

But stats are sometimes deceiving. Judging by the hit totals, SIU got the better of the contest. Helen Meyer, who has been pitching in tough luck her past two outings, allowed just three Panther hits. Two of the three EIU safeties, a single and a triple, came in the third inning, however, to account for the only earned run of the game.

The other two Panther runs crossed the plate in the first and second innings, and both were unearned.

SIU committed three errors in the game, while EIU was guilty of only one miscue.

The loss lowered Meyer's record to 3-4 and the team's log to 9-6.

After the Salukis competed in the South-east Missouri Invitational tournament April 1, the team batting mark stood at .292. Since then, however, the team average has slowly spiraled downward to .250.

The Salukis hope to revive their bats and return to their winning ways Friday when they host Illinois-Chicago Circle in a 5 p.m. matchup. Gena Valli, 2-0 on the year with one shutout, is expected to be the Saluki hurler in the game against the Windy City team.

The Redbirds of Illinois State come to town Saturday to face the Salukis in a morning-afternoon doubleheader. The first game starts at 11:30 a.m. and the second game is scheduled for 1 p.m. Karan King, 4-2 and Meyer will get starting nods for the Salukis, while the Redbirds will rely on their ace, Donna Pistick in one of the games.

The doubleheader will be the third and fourth meetings between the two teams this year. SIU and ISU split a twinbill Saturday at Normal. The Redbirds took the opener 3-2 in an extra-inning game, and the Salukis won the nightcap 1-0.

More than the overall records of the three teams competing this weekend will be at stake when the in-state rivals clash.

What goes up...

Special Olympics provides crowd with special day

The long jump, high jump, 50-yard dash, 220, 440, relays, a crowded track and hundreds of people in the stands getting tans while cheering on their favorite players during exciting competition.

Sounds like a recipe for a track meet. And it was—a very special track meet as a matter of fact with very special people. It was the 10th annual Southern Illinois Special Olympics track and field meet.

"It gives the kids some goals and recognition because they are special," said Oran Friend, one of hundreds of SIU students who assisted in the operation of the meet.

No, there weren't any world track records in serious jeopardy Thursday at Bleyer Field. One doubts if there were any professional or college scouts at the field in search of talent. But those might be the only two things missing from a collegiate track meet.

There were more than 1,000 participants at the meet and they ranged in age from 8 to 80.

The ages didn't matter Thursday. Every person participating gave it his or her best. Whether boy or girl, grandpa or youngster, mentally retarded or physically handicapped, everyone competing in the meet performed like a professional.

The smiled when they crossed the finish line. They laughed when they heard other people screaming encouragement. The worked up sweats while they were competing and were tired when they were done. And those who realized that they had earned first-place finishes raised their arms up in the air as though they had just defeated someone for the heavyweight boxing crown—what is if they were able to raise their arms. They put on quite a show.

"I think the SIU kids get as big of a kick out of watching them as the kids do competing," said Scott Julian, an SIU student who worked as equipment manager at the meet.

"They're so proud of what the kids achieved that it makes them feel good, worthwhile and rewarding. Those kids aren't really handicapped at all."

While there were 20 counties from the Southern Illinois and 100 different agencies represented at the meet, a big part of the meet's success has to be credited to the many people who helped out in so many ways—the clowns, timers, pickers and huggers.

Some members of the St. Louis Cardinal football team, the SIU football squad, rugby club, coaching staff, ex-Salukis Ivory Crockett and Andre Herrera and several volunteer students did their best at announcing, pushing wheelchairs, hugging contestants who finished events and clowning around.

"I'm here to have fun and make the kids happy," said one of the most playful of about 50 clowns wandering around the field. "Besides that, it's a real good reason to miss classes."

Perhaps the best indication of the mood of all the people was given during the wheelchair races. With several of the competitors going backwards, wanting to quit and nearly failing off numerous times, everyone was given continual words of encouragement by the crowd which wanted them to know that they could make it to their goals as long as they kept trying.

Bev Parenti, another volunteer student who helped in many ways, might have done it for other reasons, but for the same result.

"I'm doing it for the experience of working with the kids," said Parenti, a special education major. "Everybody is having a good time, things are going great, and I enjoy doing it."
